Do two simple things before you hire a lawyer:

- Find out which lawyer will be personally handling your case and be responsible for the outcome.
- Find out how many cases your lawyer has handled and how many cases your lawyer has personally tried before a jury as the lead lawyer and what the results were.

Most injury cases are settled, but to get a fair settlement, insurance companies must know that your lawyer has successfully tried cases that are similar to yours and that he or she can and will, if necessary, take your case to trial.
