

FDA Orders Post-Market Review of Spinal Screws

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ordered manufacturers of certain dynamic stabilization systems — a type of pedicle screw system — to conduct post-market surveillance and clinical studies on the safety of the systems. Source: Product Liability Law360